The Licorice Gum

Do give me another piece of Adams Black Jack Grandpa—I like the licorice in it so much, and Mamma always lets me chew it whenever I have a cold. Don't you hear how hoarse I am.

You little rascal, you've had four pieces today, but then I suppose I'll have to let you finish the package.

WOMAN GOVERNMENT TAKES OREGON TOWN FROM MEN

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Umatilla, Ore., Jan. 11.—Umatilla's city government passed this week into the hands of a woman administration. From Mrs. Laura Starcher, mayor, down to the police department, all officials are of the gentler sex except two lonely males who must serve as "holdovers" in the council.

E. E. Starcher, railroad telegrapher, handed over the robes of office to his wife. He vacated the little room from where he has directed the town's destinies for many months, and the madam took the helm. One of Mrs. Starcher's first acts will be to name the woman police force.

"A woman can do the work," said Mayoress Starcher, "better than any man." She added that if any obstreperous lawbreaker invaded Umatilla during the female regime, a man or something would be designated to handle the situation, under orders from the chiefess.

On taking office Mrs. Starcher promised the city a business administration, and said she would effect improvements her husband's regime failed to attempt.

FOUR FIRST AID STATIONS TO REPLACE AMBULANCES AT THE INAUGURAL

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Washington, Jan. 11.—Four completely-equipped First Aid stations, with white-uniformed nurses and doctors in attendance, will be maintained along the route of the inaugural parade, on Pennsylvania avenue from the capitol to the White House, March 5.

In former inaugurals, numbers of hospital ambulances patrolled the line of march, seriously interfering with the parade formation and endangering the crowd by their furious dashes to and from the various hospitals.

Medical units also will be stationed at the Union station, and special emergency corps at all of the hospitals for the more serious cases.

GAZETTE PRINTING CO.

A LITTLE TOO HARSH.

The Wall Street Journal takes the bait by the horns when it condemns Ambassador Gerard's address at the recent banquet in Berlin. The statement of the ambassador is not only good in the whole German empire and it says so on every opportunity. This latest effusion is worth reprinting to show to what length it will go when aroused, and what the sentiment of the class of people it represents believe.

Ambassador Gerard declared at Berlin that never since the war began had the relations between Germany and the United States been so cordial as at present. Our ambassador to Berlin has discharged his duties with rare skill and ability in the past, but this statement does not raise him in the eyes of his countrymen. In fact, where President Wilson has striven to be neutral, this statement carries us over the line and puts America in a false light.

In the court of the world Germany stands indicted for perjury, arson, robbery, kidnapping and murder. She has already pleaded guilty. She is charged with the murder of the charge of perjury. Louvain, Rheims are the proof of needless arson. She has pillaged and swept bare Belgium, Poland, Serbia and northern France, taking crops, cattle and even machinery from the factories. Against all international right she has leveled her hands upon Belgium and continues to do so.

Never had modern warfare seen anything equal to the military kidnapping of the women and girls of Louvain. But it remained for the enslavement of the civilians of Belgium to overshadow that, at least so far as numbers go. The ghosts of thousands upon thousands of unnamed men, women and children have been slaughtered from the Irish Sea to Armenia, and the accusing witnesses of the charge of murder.

Germany is charged with these crimes against international morality. The United States, which prides itself upon being one of the chief upholders of international law, now throws its arms around the criminal's neck and proclaims its love for it. The ambassador's declaration is like those sentimentalists who, forgetting the wife and children of the victim, shower roses on the criminal at the bar. It is well for the United States to be on friendly terms with the whole world, but the people of the United States want to see Germany clear herself of these charges. They will exhibit some resistance for her misconduct, before professing overflowing love for her.

THE HIGHWAY.

Before the discovery of steam and electricity, when Ptolemy dreamed of the Dutchman who would run to the house to call his wife to see the Devil go up stream with a windmill, the turnpike, the toll road and even the stagecoach were the means of transportation between cities, villages and communities. Through the great Cumberland highway the pioneers of the Ohio valley, the progenitors of the northwestern states, crossed the mountains into the wilderness of the west.

The great lakes, the Erie canal, the rivers and streams all played their part in the development of the nation but it was the roadways along which the wagons loaded down with household goods could travel, that created this western country. Road building was not an art; it was a necessity. It meant the bread and butter of the community. Good roads meant much travel, poor roads meant the reverse.

The William Penn Highway Bulletin of Harrisburg, Pa., has copyrighted the following by G. G. Andrews on the unimproved highway. It is pat and to the point. It tells a story so familiar to all who have traveled over the country roads that it tells a tale to itself. Rock county is making an effort to reclaim itself and may succeed. It is one of the main arteries of the state toward the great northwest for the motor car travel. Its residents now own motor cars of their own. They haul the milk to the market, their grain to the shipping station and their stock to the railroads for shipment. They realize that good roads are essential to the property of the community, so read what Mr. Andrews says: "I am the unimproved highway."

I am the unimproved highway. My name is Mud! The foot that patterned in primeval slime gave me birth. Unchanged while the ages passed, I have endured. Time has but served to increase my infinitesimal variety. Earth born and without a soul, yet have I lived, from the beginning have I been man's enemy. A dust-colored python am I, stretching my length across the hills, waiting any time to crush endeavor.

I have snared caravans that left blanching bones in lands now desert. Empires have fallen because of me. I have turned victories into routs; I have trapped mighty leaders and have crushed armies. I am without faith; and those who trust me do I deceive.

Today I am fair to look upon; tomorrow a steaming bog. Add difficulty to distance. With isolation do I conspire to unjoin the endeavors of man. I tug at the wheels of the grain cart, that bread may be dear. I hamper those who would feed the race. I am an enemy of church and school. I mire the healer on his rounds and delay the coming that little ones may die. I am a disrupter of homes. I speed the firstborn to the cities where I am feared and hated; and when he would return I face him with my forbidding depths. I minister to Bitterness; and lay a tax on all the world. There is none who lives who does not pay me tribute.

When men ploughed with a crooked stick I was there. When the ancients covered me with stones, I slipped away to other lands. I am the oldest thing that lives today. Men count me cheap. I know the price they pay who count me so. I am the unimproved highway. My name is Mud!

THE NEW SHERIFF.

Sheriff "Bob" Whipple has started from the ground up, according to official reports, in cleaning the county jail. He intends to make his term of office as clean as the building he lives in as sheriff, and all the cleansing powders and the work of good muslin will aid materially in cleaning the jail structure clean while he will care for the rest. Thus far he has not had a real opportunity to test out his ability in any real official capacity, but the Gazette is certain that he will not be found wanting when the time comes. At present he is working under a handicap on the commitment law convictions. If persons who wish to employ labor of this kind, and are willing to comply with the requirements, will notify Mr. Whipple of their needs he will care for them as fast as the opportunities arrive. He will not have to make opportunities, but if he has a waiting list he will not put a farm hand at work in a factory, and a cobbler, a tailor, a clerk, a salesman or any other tradesman at work on a farm, if he can place them properly. Work with the sheriff and obtain the best results.

HASTE MAKES WASTE.

The county board is taking time for consideration of important matters instead of either rejecting them or passing them upon the spot. The board is taking time to consider the matter. Take it all in all the members of the Rock county board are a pretty level-headed sort of individuals. They are not seeking to burden the county with taxes for experiments or innovations unless they know they are safe and sane and worth the time and money expended. Haste makes waste and the members of our county board of supervisors are figuring it all out before they make any startling change in the affairs of the county. Trust them and withhold any criticism you may have until they finish their deliberations and then you can rest assured the majority rule that makes this country worth living in has been invoked for some good purpose.

If you want to know what the Boy Scout movement in Janesville means just attend one of the weekly meetings held this month at the Y. M. C. A. and see the interest displayed by the boys and girls. They gather each Wednesday night and are being drilled by a regular army sergeant in the facings and markings. Our future citizens appreciate the opportunity and take advantage of it.

Well, the Wisconsin legislature knows what Governor Philipp passed on for economy now is. If they see fit to follow it perhaps the poor taxpayer will have some chance for his white alley in this game of the H. C. L.

Evidently the new coo of the dove of peace that hovered over William Jennings' desk has decided that the stock brokers' tickers is much more appropriate than the old-fashioned love-making sound.

Really, when you come to figure it out, the stock market manipulators make money whether it is peace or war these days. Only they want an inside tip a few minutes ahead of the rest of the crowd.

Carranza's army appears to exist for the purpose of furnishing Villa with ammunition and at the same time convincing Wilson he must withdraw Pershing.

Phillips talks like a man who has been doing some profitable thinking for the public so why not suggest the legislature listen to him.

Present indications are that the European war will live to see its third birthday safely and no one will be a bit wiser when it will end than when it started.

Conquest does not look half as good to any of the contenders in the great war as it did three years ago, but why worry?

The Daily Novelette

IN THE SWIM.

Into the high life.
They got at last;
And out again, they Went pretty fast.

The O'Daddies were social climbers. They lived their lives according to the fashion. They had learned to play bridge, whist, although they much preferred fighting over checkers with each other at home. For the O'Daddies were the most loving couple in the world. They did all sorts of things they didn't enjoy, for the way of the social climber is hard.

As their story opens, they are in their drawing room, in each other's arms, in tears.
"Oh, it's terrible, terrible!" sobbed young Mrs. O'Daddie. "I'd—I'd rather give up society altogether, Wallie darling."
"Courage, Delphine," soothed O'Daddie, though his own voice was husky with emotion. "There's no crying out. All our friends have one, and they are beginning to look at us coolly. We must get one, Delphine. You know best, Wallie, she sniveled. "Will you will you see the—the—"
"Yes, I'll see the lawyer. I'll attend to all the details," her husband assured her brokenly.

And four months later they got their divorce.

On the Spur of the Moment

ROY K. MOULTON

SUSAN GREY

He wooed the lovely Susan Grey, He sought her heart and hand; But when she always told him Nay He sought another land.

Said he, "A vengeance will I wreak, I'll earn a pile of dough, And Sue will rue it, so to speak, That she has told me No."

And so he did as he declared And very rich he grew; Then back to Susan's town he fared, To get the goat of Sue.

And Sue was pleasant as could be And bid him come to call. "Oh, ho!" he laughed and eke "Tee hee!"

This isn't bad at all!" Revenge was sweet, He went to see His Susan and to chat; "She is so fair," mused he, "I'll have the girl at that!"

"For though she knows I've lots of dough I love her as of yore," And then what did he do but go And kneel upon the floor!

And Susan heard his gentle plea, Her lovely eyes they fell. "Oh, never in the world!" said she. "You cannot always tell!"

This Day in History Two hundred years ago today the author of the first knife-and-plea joke an English criminal, was hanged for his atrocities. He had also murdered his grandmother.

Often So.

A candid man is Bartley Binks. He always says just what he thinks. And that's all right; it's this that stings. He always thinks unpleasant things.

Bachelor Girls, So to Speak. Bachelor girls are getting to be quite common these days, although for that matter so are lots of girls who wear the latest styles. Bachelor girls should not be confused with spinsters, because they never spin except sometimes in taxis. But can usually tell a bachelor girl, but it wouldn't do to tell her.

Bachelor girls, of course, are so by choice. But not their own choice. The more bachelors there are, the more bachelor girls, and if the bachelor would marry the bachelor girls this would largely do away with all of them. Especially the bachelors get the girls. Bachelors are usually a good deal of course, than bachelor girls, although not so wild as bachelor girls are when they consider bachelors. Bachelor girls are really more accomplished than bachelors. They can sing and dance and play on one string. Many bachelors, though, can sing and yodel nicely, around the bathroom, while shaving in the morning. Bachelor girls live in two kinds, Thin and Sentimental. They get thin from being sentimental. But bachelor girls will be bachelor girls, for all the bachelors care they will, at least.

Or Merely a Shirt.

A Land of Dreams might seem to you A happy place and fair; If one there be I'm sure do Not wish to settle there.

To have them laugh at me and stare, Most everyone I'd meet! Because, of course, I'd often wear My nightgown on the street!

In computing the cost of things these days one adds up the figures for a sum total. And Some total is what you get.

GLOVER PRACTICALLY MAKES CONFESSION

Whitewater Man Admits He Shot Men But Will Not Sign Confession—Hearing Postponed.

Whitewater, Jan. 11.—James Glover, held in connection with the shooting of Charles Visco and Nick Ignietzki at the residence of Tony Olenik in this city, has practically made a formal confession in which he admits having shot the two men. After a long questioning on the part of Chief of Police McLane, Glover yesterday made his confession. On the advice of his attorney, who is, however, Hugh Glover, the defendant's brother, has secured to handle the case, Glover refused to sign the confession. The hearing has been postponed until Friday of next week.

Yesterday Glover was taken by the chief of police to the spot where the crime had been committed. Glover seemed to realize that any further declaration of his ignorance of the shooting of the two men would be futile. Accordingly, he took the chief across the railroad bridge and then under this structure. Here he showed where he had thrown the shotgun he had used to shoot the men, into a channel of open water, where men had been cutting ice.

Glover claims that following this he came out onto the street again next to the Marr icehouse, and passed the police station on his way home. At this time the two victims of his assault were in the station, and a search for the culprit had already been instigated. Soon after this, while he was returning down town, he was captured where he had thrown the shotgun he had used to shoot the men, into a channel of open water, where men had been cutting ice.

Upon the information already obtained by Glover's confession and from the other sources upon which the police are working, Mrs. Glover was yesterday released.

Mrs. A. L. Giesey and daughter, Ruby, were at Beloit yesterday to attend the funeral of Mrs. Giesey's sister, Mrs. Margaret Cunningham.

ENGLISH LAWSUIT UNIQUE IN MANNER

London, Jan. 11.—The longest and one of the most unique lawsuits ever heard of in the English courts has just been decided. It involved the ownership of $250,000 in gold sold to the Amalgamated Properties of Rhodesia, Ltd., owners of a million acres in Rhodesia claimed that the Globe and Phoenix Gold Mining company, which owns the richest gold mine in the world, had taken from the Rhodesia property. As if to be consistent the court occupied two hours in delivering judgment.

The case lasted 144 days and cost $750,000. One witness was on the stand sixteen days, and another who was on the stand almost a week, died. Two other men who were interested in the case died before it was concluded.

More than 50,000 questions were put to witnesses and answered. In the final summing up counsel for the defendant spoke for 45 days. Chief counsel for the defendant received a fee of $5,000 and his "refresher" or daily charge, $400.

The documents in the case were so voluminous that two large rooms were crowded with maps, assays, and reports. The proceedings were arranged by a series of scenes between opposing counsel and apologies were ordered by the court.

In deciding the case, Justice Eve dismissed the action on Sunday, and the Amalgamated Properties had failed to prove that the gold was extracted from its mine which adjoined that of the Globe and Phoenix.

IF ALLIES ARE VICTORS GERMANY INDEMNITY TO BE EIGHTY BILLION DOLLARS

Paris, Jan. 11.—A French economist, Barthélemy Rey, who is the first Frenchman of any note to examine the subject of indemnity in detail, declares that the Entente will be called upon to pay four hundred and one billion francs, or as the rate of exchange, about eighty billion dollars. He says that the Entente will be able to pay off the whole of such indemnity in fifty years at the rate of nearly fifteen billions a year.

Summing up, according to M. Rey, on assumption that the war will continue until next July, the items of indemnity are:

Allies' State War Expenses $30
Allies' Provincial Expenses 10
Allies' Compensation for Damage 30
Allies' Pensions 30
Total 100

REV. ANDREW PORTER OF THE M. E. CHURCH CALLED BY DEATH

Retired Pastor Succumbs Suddenly to Attack of Pneumonia—Long in Service of Church.

At a quarter to nine this morning death came to the Reverend Andrew Porter, retired pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, at his home at 533 North Chatham street, following a brief illness of but ten days from the dreaded pneumonia. Mr. Porter was sixty-nine years of age, and the ravages of the disease were too strong for the weakened vitality of the aged man.

In the death of the Reverend Andrew Porter many people not only in this city but in many communities throughout the state will keenly feel the loss of a man whose great kindness and sympathy has for a long period characterized him and made him one of the best loved of the pastors of the Methodist church. His devotion to his church and to his work was ever an inspiration to those who came in contact with him; his generosity won for him the true gratitude and love of hundreds; his regard for the interests of those about him brought to him the consideration of all who knew of his life and his works.

The Reverend Porter was born in Ireland in 1848, but had been a resident of this state for many years. During most of this time he made Janesville his home, always returning here when he completed charges in other sections. Four years ago, after leaving Bristol, Wis., where he had filled the pulpit of the Methodist church, he decided to retire from active service. Since that time he has lived in Janesville, dividing his time between reading, writing, and administrative work of the church. Mr. Porter was a most active man, to the very end; keenly interested in all phases of church work, and using his energy, and of a great good will that commanded respect and attracted affection wherever it was met.

Mr. Porter is survived by his wife and by one son, George, of this city. The funeral services will be held from the Carroll Memorial Methodist Episcopal Church Saturday afternoon at two o'clock. On Monday morning the remains will be taken to Oconomowoc, where Mr. Porter once lived, for interment.

EXPECT HARD FIGHT WITH FOGARTY TEAM

Cardinals to Meet Old Rivals at the Rink Saturday Night—Rockford Has Victorious Season.

Janesville basketball fans who remember last season's exciting season of three victories which the Lakotas scored over Fogarty's battlers in last year's series, are anxiously awaiting the coming of the Rockford boys into the camp of their bitter rivals on Saturday evening. Whoever anyone refers to a particularly hard game he always speaks of one of the three games with Fogarty; games which were perhaps the hardest the local team had during their long stay in the Illinois bunch are out for blood this year, and have challenged Manager Caldwell and his men to another series of three games, accounting for the fact that the team is going to those games, to make up for last year's two defeats.

Fogarty, Young and Murphy, all old men who are only too well remembered by local fans, will be the game Saturday, with two new stars lined up to carry defeat into the Lakotas' proud retreats. So far this year the Rockford team has played thirteen games and of this number has not lost one.

With a record like that and with the men Fogarty will bring, there is every assurance that Saturday's game will be one of the best that will be seen here this year. The lineup for the Cardinals has not as yet been announced, but it is rumored that there will be three of the regulars and two new stars to take the place of the aged Caldwell realizes what he is going up against in this game and accordingly will arrange to have the best team he can get together on the floor opposite the Fogarty men; the sting of the defeat administered by the Wisconsin Reserves, under the able leadership of Ray Edler, is alone enough to make the local boys fight for a substantial victory over their old enemies from Illinois.

JAMES F. CARGILL DIES IN THE WEST

Word was received here today of the death of James F. Cargill of Minneapolis, which occurred yesterday in Los Angeles, where he was making his home. Mr. Cargill is well known here; he was the son of the late Captain Cargill, after whom the Carroll Memorial Methodist church is named. Mr. Cargill was engaged in the grain business in Minneapolis for many years with his two brothers, W. W. Cargill and Samuel Cargill, who have preceded him to the city beyond.

He is a brother of Mrs. George R. Barker of this city, who was at the bedside at the time of the death. Mr. Cargill was sixty-four years old, and for many years lived at the homestead three miles out on the Milton road. He is survived by his wife and one daughter, Margaret. The funeral will be held in Minneapolis on Monday.

CABINET IS FAVORED BY GOV. PHILIPP

Conservation: Hanson, Everett, Reinhold, Stevens, Wilkenson, Highways: Cunningham, Baxter, Clark, Kuckuk, Staudenmayer.

The senate adopted a joint resolution to adjourn until Tuesday.

Philipp Forces in Control.

With the preliminaries of organization swept away both houses of the legislature were ready for business today. The reading of the governor's message placed squarely before the legislature, the work of the session.

Governor Philipp's forces hold complete mastery in both houses and to one who has witnessed the legislative organization it is now apparent that the governor has at his command the means of carrying out his complete program.

Without a hitch the caucus nominees of Tuesday night were ratified in senate and assembly yesterday.

Today Speaker L. C. Whitte, Chief Clerk C. E. Shaffer, Sergeant-at-Arms T. G. Cretney were pushing the work of the assembly with a view to resuming session for a month.

During the afternoon the members of the assembly drew their names for the committee on the governor's message.

Before adjourning last night the senate announced the following appointments for that house:

Corporations—Bray, chairman; Muhlberger, Zumbach, Skogmo, Wilkenson, Whitman.

Education and public welfare—Perry, chairman; Albers, Barwig, Kuckuk, Potts, Muller, Staudenmayer, Whitman, chairman; Anderson, Burke, Huber, Jennings, Ragueus, Wilcox.

State affairs—Stevens, chairman; Arnold, Cunningham, Everett, Hanson, Reinhold, Roethe.

Legislative procedure—Burke, chairman; Bennett, Bray, Perry, Stevens, Whitman.

Contingent expenditure—Everett, chairman; Albers, Huber, Muhlberger, Potts.

Committee on committees—Perry, Albers, Burke.

Regular meeting of Carroll Council, K. of C., tonight. All members expected to be present. Business of importance.

TO ADDRESS MEETING OF MILK PRODUCERS

W. J. Kittle, Secretary of Chicago Milk Producers' Association, to Talk in Janesville, Jan. 17.

On Wednesday evening, January 17th, W. J. Kittle, secretary of the Chicago Milk Producers' association, will deliver an address at the city hall.

This is one of the attractions arranged for the benefit of Rock county farmers during the week of the southern Wisconsin poultry show.

Mr. Kittle comes to Janesville under the auspices and at the request of the Janesville Milk Producers' association, and the meeting will be held primarily in the interests of Janesville milk producers.

Mr. Kittle is one of the very best qualified men to speak on marketing milk, as he is secretary of the Chicago Milk Producers' association, which has over 13,000 members, and is the owner of two fine dairy farms located near Libertyville, Illinois, and which are at present engaged in marketing milk.

At the meeting on the seventeenth, all members of the Janesville Milk Producers' association are requested to be present, and all milk producers in the vicinity of Janesville who are not members of the association can be present at this meeting and join the association.

Invitations have been sent to the associations at Avalon, Clinton, Beloit and Whitewater to be present and take part in the meeting, which should be highly instructive and very beneficial to all men engaged in marketing milk.

NEWS NOTES—MOVIELAND

BY DAISY DEAN

"Among the bewares that I would compile for motion picture producers," said Henry W. Savage, "is beware of the backups."

"By these I mean the long, tedious flashbacks, which not only hinder the action of the picture, but seem to me to be an insult to the intelligence of the audience. For instance, we progress to the exciting point at which the heroine is in the power of the villain. The hero, who up to this time has been busily engaged watching the stock market, is warned by some unseen power that his sweetheart is in danger. We see him close his desk, shut the office door, descend in the elevator, go through the revolving door, board a taxi or a street car, according to the condition of the stock market and the strength of his belief in the imminence of Mary's danger, ride from Wall street to a hundred and sixteenth, walk to Mary's apartment house, ride up in the elevator or ascend a flight after flight of stairs, according to Mary's station in life, ring the bell, etc.

TOO MUCH REALISM.

All this time Mary's throat has been at the tender mercy of the villain's thumbs. It is all very well to aim at realism, but not to the point of tediousness. No one cares how the hero arrives as long as his object is in time for the proper moment.

"The same thing holds true of the indiscriminate use of visions. Every time the heroine looks sad and she is thinking of some painful event of her childhood—but why inflict this pain upon the audience by flashing that distressing scene again and again? Jane registers sadness and after the first time we can account for that sadness. Therefore let the picture proceed.

"A third instance of this is the photograph told as a story by one of the principal characters. As soon as the story reaches a certain point of interest it is interrupted by a flash of the narrator in exactly the same position he was in at the beginning of the picture, as if the director is trying his best to impress upon us that it is not really a piece of life after all, but just a picture story."

SUPER COMEDIES.

Startling effects are in the new comedies being produced.

One of the first of these comedies pictures the bursting of a tank on top of a hotel.

The scenes show a flood of water rushing down from floor to floor, sweeping occupants and furniture along with it. Finally the flood sweeps through a banquet hall, carrying the banquet table, at which fifty guests in evening clothes are seated, along with it. These comedies are to start early in January.

RUMANIA IN STRIFE

TO SEE ITS FINISH

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]

Tokio, Jan. 11.—While everybody in Tokio was awaiting news as to the fate of Bucharest a Rumanian mission arrived here to negotiate the purchase of munitions. It includes two officers, Lieutenant-Colonel C. Felix and Colonel F. Petresco of the engineering corps. They said the fall of Bucharest would be by no means end the Rumanian campaign. "Our natural line of defense lies to the north of the capital," they said. "The rapid offensive of the Central Powers may give them temporary advantage but the Rumanians entered in this war to stay and we will be in at the finish." The speaker believed it was now a question of reinforcements arriving for both sides. The Russians who were coming to Rumania's assistance have an open territory to cover while the Germans have a difficult mountainous country through which they must transport their artillery and bring reinforcements. He declared that at ready about 500,000 Russian troops were in Rumania and that additional reinforcements were arriving daily. The present output of munitions in Japan is practically all taken by Russia, but it is likely that something will be done for the Rumanians. The visit of the Rumanian officers has been followed by a further rise in the price of war supplies.

WOMAN'S PAGE

Heart and Home Problems

By Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson
Letters may be addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in care of The Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) My heart looks like goose skin all the time. I use a good soap, but it does not help any. Do you think a good cream would help?

If I have four wrinkles under each eye. Can you suggest something for me to do for them? I am a young lady twenty-four years of age. I have a regular hours for sleeping and do not stay up late.

(2) Will you please give me a prescription for oily hair?

A FRIEND.
(1) Ask your druggist to recommend a massage cream which is also a skin food. Every night apply it with your fingers. Do not use hot water to your neck until the pores are thoroughly opened. Use cold cream and massage your neck for ten or fifteen minutes. If you do this regularly your neck will become soft and white.

(2) Massage your face with the same cream you use for your neck. Move your fingers in a gentle rotary motion so that you will not stretch your muscles or make your skin flabby. This in time will remove the wrinkles.

(3) Make a tonic of one dram of tincture of cantharides, one-half dram of tincture of capsicum, two drams of tincture of nuxvomica, three drams of tincture of coccoloba and two and one-half ounces of alcohol. Shake before using. Massage nightly into the scalp with the finger tips.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) How old should a boy be before he should go with a girl?

(2) How often should a fellow go to see his girl and how late should he stay?

(3) I am fifteen years old, but I am very tall, and all people take me for eighteen and twenty. Would it be all right to keep company with a girl and take her to a show about once a week if we come home by 9:15 and her mother does not object?

(4) What harm is there in kissing a girl good-night if you have gone with her—steadily for almost two years? M. C. S. G.

(1) Seventeen or eighteen.
(2) A boy should not go to see a girl often than twice a week—that is very often.

(3) I think you are too young. A boy should not ask for them unless he is going to marry the girl, and she should not give them unless she expects to marry him.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) Recently I went to a dance. I promised a dance ahead of time, but when the dance started I forgot and danced with someone else. The fellow would not speak to me all the rest of the evening and he told my sister he would never speak to me again. I have written a letter apologizing for my forgetfulness. Do you think I did right, and did the fellow have any occasion to get so angry?

(2) I have some articles of jewelry belonging to a fellow whom I no longer go with. They are of no value. Should I return them?

(3) Is two years long enough to train to be a private secretary?

E. L.
(1) You did the right thing when you wrote the letter. He had occasion to get angry, but he should not have shown his anger in the way he did.

(2) Yes, return them.

(3) Yes.
Dear Mrs. Thompson: Should a girl losing her escort at a dance seek him out and tell him when she wants to go home or should she go home alone? The dance was at night and it was about eleven o'clock.

FRANCES.
You should find him and tell him you want to go home. It is not necessary to see him again after he leaves you at your home if his treatment has been discourteous.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: My husband has a small tattoo on his hand. Do you know of anything that will remove it? ANXIOUS.
There is nothing that will remove a tattoo.

HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

DR. BULL ON "COLD" GERMS.

Contrary to an impression that prevails among some of our readers, this is really the first time this department has presented any material from the above source about "colds."

Why are "colds" epidemic at intervals, irrespective of weather and things? Dr. C. G. Bull of Rockefeller Institute observed that pneumonia (cold germs) disappeared from the area of infection within a few minutes after a mass of the germs was injected into a dog. The germs become agitated, clumped together in small masses, and are carried by the blood to the lungs and other organs. A day or two later the germs reinvade the blood, and now the dog shows symptoms of septicaemia (blood poisoning). About the fifth day the dog suddenly begins to recover, and the blood is found free of germs.

The primary clumping of the germs and their conveyance to the organs represents the incubation period of the infection. The secondary invasion of the blood by descendants of the same germs which have rapidly multiplied in the organs represents the beginning of the illness. The same sequence of events occurs in "CATCHING A COLD," be it coryza, sore throat or pneumonia. They follow a similar incubation period, sometimes lasting a few hours, then the illness begins. With the onset of the illness there is likely to be chilliness or a chill, and I suppose human nature will always react in ascribing to the chill of invasion a causative role. For the snap-diagnostician, the doctor who likes to divine what is the matter without the trouble of studying the patient, it is probably convenient to ascribe an interest in the chill.

When one with a "cold" sprays his friends and innocent bystanders with the invisible salivary spray of sneezing, coughing, laughing and talking, and at a time when the germs are at the very acme of virulence or fecundity, the results are naturally more disastrous than would be the case if he were to hand them a sample of his "cold" at the very onset or after the crisis is past. During the height of the disease the germs are more capable of getting past the natural barriers and consummating an infection. This explains epidemics of "colds." It is a matter of the passing of the infection at the psychological moment from the standpoint of the germs.

Probably most invasions of the nose or throat with "cold" germs fail to materialize in a "cold" because the germs are in a comparatively feeble, unactivated condition. It takes weeks or months of close confinement in the dry, tropical atmosphere of our habitations to render the field fallow, and the seed must be sown ready to sprout.

In short our loving friends must hand it to us hot.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Please tell me what will prevent excessive and frequent sneezing. Will iodide of potash cure a small goitre? (E. F. P.)

ANSWER—1. If you are taking any iodine, stop it. 2. No. 3. Polyps in the nose, thickened middle turbinate body, or ordinary chronic rhinitis ("catarrh") may cause sneezing. Let the doctor examine nasal cavity with his headlight.

Prevention of Whooping Cough. A great many cases of whooping cough have developed in our neighborhood. Is there any precaution we can take to prevent this disease in our seven year old daughter? (M. C. D.)

ANSWER—Have her immunized against it with the whooping cough bacterin. Keep her in the open air as much as possible, but apart from all children with "colds."

"Great scheme! I'll do that," replied the girl with delight. "The occasion warrants extreme measures. If I go I want to take the 5 o'clock train tonight to your office." Marjory was struggling into her coat as she spoke.

"Good-bye, dear. No more blues for Marjory," she called as she shut the door behind her.

"Good-bye her," thought Aunt Lois, wiping her eyes. "If only there were to be no more blues for her. I would have kept all this trouble from her; this trouble that has been the making of her. How blind we are! If we could only trust our loved ones in His hands, knowing that there could be no real harm come to them, that they could not drift beyond His love and care."

Household Hints

EXCELLENT MEATLESS DINNER.

Poor Man's Roast
Raised Biscuits
Coffee Pudding
Tea or Coffee

Poor Man's Roast—Mix together one can kidney beans (mashed), one-fourth pound cheese cut fine, a few crackers rolled; moisten with enough milk so mixture can be formed into loaf. Bake one-half hour and baste with melted butter. Serve on platter and garnish with parsley or lettuce.

Spiced Apples—Boil for ten minutes one-half cup vinegar, one-half cup water, one cup brown sugar, two spoon ground cloves and half teaspoon ground cloves and half teaspoon mixed, add one quart of pared and quartered apples; simmer with roast, der but not broken. Serve with roast.

Scald one pint milk and one cup strong black coffee (left from breakfast), mix one-half cup sugar and two tablespoons cornstarch with a little water and add to scalded milk. Cook ten minutes slowly. When cool add a little vanilla and pour into mold.

This is a very satisfactory meal and should be enough for four persons. No potatoes are needed, but may be used if desired.

THE TABLE.
Goose Relish (German dish)—Get a nice fat goose and take off the loose fat. Season goose with a little salt and pepper, boil till nearly tender with just water enough to cook it, then put in one pint good cider vinegar and boil till tender.

Put in stone crock, leaving the bones in with the meat. It is a very dainty relish. To be sliced up cold. Turkey or chicken may be cooked in the same manner.

Stuffed Tongue—Secure one good-sized tongue. Let in salt and water over night. Next morning put in fresh water to cook, with salt and pepper to taste; also one sliced onion. Cook until tender. Remove from liquor, skin and set aside to cool. When cool chop (not too fine). Add the strained liquor in which has been cooking, a few pimientos cut in strips add to appearance and flavor. Slice cold. Veal cooked this way is very good, too.

Chicken With Macaroni (Italian style)—Cook one pound macaroni until done. While it is cooking fry a chicken until nicely browned (if chicken is not young, boil before frying). Remove chicken to platter. Fry an onion in skillet where chicken was fried. When a light brown, add one small can tomatoes to onion and stew until tomatoes become thick. Season with salt and pepper.

Macaroni cover with grated cheese and pour tomato mixture over all. Put in a hot oven a few minutes, and serve. This amount will serve five. No potatoes needed with this dish.

Mock Roast Chicken—Two pounds veal cutlets cut in two slices, one cup dressing. Rub the two slices of veal well with lemon. Take two cups bread crumbs, one grated onion, one-half teaspoon salt, pinch paprika, pinch celery salt, level teaspoon butter or bacon fat. Melt butter or bacon fat, put over bread crumbs and enough water or broth to make moist; add all other ingredients, put between slices of veal and form into shape of chicken as nearly as you can; fasten down with toothpicks.

Bake twenty minutes in hot oven, basting every five minutes. This will taste just like chicken.

Baked Bacon on Potatoes—Take as many potatoes as wanted (take for four people) and twice as many slices of bacon. Wash potatoes and cut each in halves lengthwise. Lay these in baking tin, dust with pepper and salt, and place one thin slice of bacon on each half of potato. Bake until potatoes are tender (about half an hour) and bacon nicely browned. Serve hot, decorated with parsley. Fine for luncheon dish.

Honeycomb Pudding—One-half cup butter, one-half cup sugar, one-half cup flour, one cup molasses, one teaspoon soda, four eggs. Cream the butter and sugar. Add eggs. Beat together molasses and soda, then add flour. Butter pan into which put the mixture. Bake slowly. Delicious served with cream.

Vinaigrette Sauce—One-third cup of olive oil, one tablespoon of chopped sweet pickle, one tablespoon of chopped sweet peppers, one tablespoonful of paprika, half a teaspoonful of salt, a few grains of red pepper, a quarter cupful of vinegar. Mix ingredients in the order given, stir well. Serve cold. Fine for cold meats.

CHICKENS SHOULD BE AMUSED SAYS THIS WOMAN EXPERT

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)
Dallas, Tex., Jan. 11.—Chickens should be amused. The feathered kind, that is.

Authority for the above statement today is Mrs. T. P. Marshall, sold for the extension service of the Texas Agricultural and Mechanical college.

Chickens hatched in an incubator and life and an interesting because of the mechanical way in which they are ushered into the world, according to Mrs. Marshall.

"One way of amusing them," she says, is to pile the straw on the floor and let them tear it apart and it teaches them to scratch."

DOMESTIC SCIENCE CLASS ADOPTS BABY FOR PRACTICE

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)
Appleton, Jan. 11.—Wishing to have a live subject to work with, the girls of the domestic science department of the Appleton high school have adopted a two-month-old baby.

The girls in the department are now kept busy feeding it scientifically and dressing it according to best health hints. It was taken from a poor family of seven children.

Side Talks

FOUR DOLLARS A WEEK.
Someone told me of a most interesting experiment the other day.

We were talking about the extra ordinarily large wages demanded and received, by girls who do housework.

One woman told of a friend who pays eight dollars for a maid for herself and husband. They have a small house and they are away to meals about a quarter of the time.

Another told of a family of two where the maid received six dollars a week though the family were away months at a time. The washing was put out and the woman even offered to have the cleaning done.

Twenty-one Dollars a Week for Housework.

I myself told of hearing a woman in an intelligence office informed that the only accommodator (misleading name) she could get, charged three dollars a day.

When one realizes that no vocational training is required and that the wages are not affected by the high cost of living, since living is included, one gets an idea of how much these wages mean.

And yet girls prefer to go into shops and factories and telephone exchanges where they sometimes get barely a living wage! Why is it?

No one can surely know, but the experiment of which I started to tell you is in an index finger pointing to one reason.

"There's a Reason," began the one who chronicled the experiment. We all listened with bated breath expecting to hear some new shocker such as ten or twelve "four dollars a week," she finished.

"Well, listen to the rest," she said. "This woman advertised in the paper for a maid to work eight hours a day, no washing, for four dollars a week and she got thirty applicants."

How They Got Along With Eight Hours.

"But how did she arrange about the eight hours?"

"The girl comes at seven and gets breakfast. She does the work of the house and gets the dinner which they have at noon. She clears it away and prepares something in the line of a salad for supper. At three o'clock she goes. The family put the supper on the table themselves, clear it away and put the dishes to soak. She is supposed to work steadily during her eight hours just as a girl in an office or factory, and like that girl, when she is through, she is through. Her time is her own."

The comments were interesting. "Four dollars a week!" murmured one woman avidly.

"You'd never have her there evenings," said another.

"Girls are certainly getting more independent every year," said the author of the wife.

MORE SKIRT, LESS SHOE.

London, Jan. 11.—Lengthen the skirts and shorten the shoes as another way-time economy was made in putnam the other day. The member told of going through the fashionable quarter of London's shopping district and finding women's footwear selling for from $10 to $15 a pair, the average length of the uppers being from ten to sixteen inches. He found some as high as 22 inches.

The Highflyers

In Which it is Shown That One Can be a "Society Man" and Also a Common Thief.

"Aunt Lois, listen to this!" exclaimed Marjory in great excitement, saying the morning paper wildly above her head.

"Why, child! are you crazy?" asked the girl, "and that good lady, gazing in astonishment at her niece."

"Yes, crazy with joy," cried the girl, "and you will not wonder when you know about it. Do you see the headlines?"

"What is it?" asked the girl, "and you will not wonder when you know about it. Do you see the headlines?"

"Diamond Mystery Solved at Last!" read Miss Volmar. "You don't mean that?"

"But I do, though. Listen. The loss of a valuable necklace some weeks ago was not a mystery. It was thought that the detectives would have a better chance of securing the gems if the theft was made public. Mrs. T. M. Gerard wore the necklace to the theater on the evening of November 20th and when she arrived at home they were gone. Thorough search was made of the theater box, taxi and every possible place, but no trace of them was found. The theory worked upon by the detectives was that the gems had become unclipped and someone had seen them fall and picked them up. They were waiting for sale. As all dealers in stones were on the lookout for the necklace.

"A few days ago the pendant of the necklace was offered for sale in Chicago and the detective traced it back through a different sales to a prominent society man of this city. A prominent thought of his being the thief (Miss Gerard happened to mention that a friend of hers had been told about her loss by this same young man. As he had no way of knowing about it, that she could discover her suspicions were aroused. She remembered that same young man had as been in the theater box and had suspected the chain of evidence and the society man was arrested. Mr. J. N. Sweetland now awaits trial, accused of grand larceny."

Marjory laid down the paper and threw her arms around her aunt's neck.

"Think of it, Aunt. They are found. Tom is not to be troubled with them any more. We have not to save for years to pay for them. Oh, how can I wait to have him know?"

"He probably knows by this time. The paper is a good carrier of news," said the delighted aunt with a beaming face.

"Hurry up the breakfast. I want to stop in at the jeweler's on my way to the office and see if it is really true." She began to fly around making preparations to leave the minute breakfast was swallowed. "I had had a life sentence and a reprieve had come." Marjory was almost hysterical in her joy.

"I think you owe it to yourself to have a little celebration over this," said Miss Volmar as she poured the coffee. "Why not ask for a leave of absence for a day or two and run up and see Tom so you can rejoice together?"

A Casus Belli.
A visitor to an English training camp was greatly shocked at the appearance of the men. Turn where he would, black eyes and bruised faces were astonishingly frequent among the soldiers.
"What's been the row?" he asked his friend.
"Had a row with the next regiment, that's all," replied the corporal.
"What about?"
"Oh, the beggars set a sentry to watch their towel while it was out drying, and we felt insulted."

CHAUNCEY, SWEEP OUT PADDED CELL 39751.

"K"

By Mary Roberts Rinehart

(Copyright, by McClure Publications, Inc.)

"Sidney will be here this afternoon."

"Good." His tone was noncommittal.

"Has it occurred to you, K., that Sidney is not very happy?"

He stopped in front of her.

"She's had a great anxiety."

"She has no anxiety now. Max is doing well."

"Then what is it?"

"I'm not quite sure, but I think I know. She's lost faith in Max, and she's not like me. I—I knew about Palmer before I married him. It's all rather hideous—I needn't go into it. But Sidney has more character than I have. Max isn't what she thought he was, and I doubt whether she'll marry him."

K. glanced toward the street where Sidney's name and Max's lay open to the sun and to the smiles of the street.

Christine might be right, but that did not alter things for him.

Christine's thoughts went back inevitably to herself; to Palmer, who was doing better just now; to K., who was going away—went back with an ache to the night K. had taken her in his arms and then put her away. How wrong things were! What a mess life was!

"When you go away," she said at last. "I want you to remember this. I'm going to do my best. K. You have taught me all I know. All my life I'll have to overlook things; I know that. But, in his way, Palmer cares for me. He will always come back, and perhaps sometime—"

Her voice trailed off. Far ahead of her she saw the years stretching out, marked, not by days and months, but by Palmer's wanderings away, his remorseful returns.

"Do a little more than forgetting," K. said. "Try to cure for him, Christine. You did once. And that's your strongest weapon. And it wins in the end."

"I shall try, K.," she answered obediently.

But he turned away from the look in her eyes.

Harriet was abroad. She had sent cards from Paris to her "trade." It was an innovation. The two or three people on the street who received her engraved announcement that she was there, "buying new chic models for the autumn and winter—afternoon frocks, evening gowns, reception dresses, and wraps, from Poiret, Martini et Armand, and others," left the envelopes casually on the parlor table, as if communications from Paris were quite to be expected.

So K. lunched alone, and ate little. Sidney came home at half-past two—came delicately flushed, as if she had hurried, and with a tremulous smile that caught Katie's eyes at once.

"Bless the child!" she said. "There's no need to ask how he is today. You're all one smile."

The smile set just a trifle.

"Katie, someone has written my name out on the street, in chalk. It's with Doctor Wilson's, and it looks so silly. Please go out and sweep it off."

"I'm about crazy with their old chalk. I'll do it after a while."

"Please do it now. I don't want anyone to see it. Is—Mr. K. upstairs?"

But when she learned that K. was upstairs, oddly enough, she did not go up at once. She stood in the lower hall and listened. Yes, he was there. She could hear him moving about. Her lips parted slightly as she listened.

Christine, looking in from her balcony, saw her there, and, seeing something in her face that she had never suspected, put her hand to her throat.

"Sidney!"

"Oh—hello, Chris."

"Won't you come and sit with me?"

"I haven't much time—that is, I want to speak to K."

"You can see him when he comes down."

Sidney came slowly through the parlor. It occurred to her, all at once, that Christine must see a lot of K., especially now. No doubt he was in and out of the house often. And how pretty Christine was! She was unhappy, too. All that seemed to be necessary to win K.'s attention was to be unhappy enough. Well, surely, in that case—

"How is Max?"

"Still better."

Sidney sat down on the edge of the railing; but she was careful, Christine saw, to face the staircase. There was silence on the balcony. Christine sewed; Sidney sat and swung her feet idly.

"I'm Not Going to Marry Him at All, Chris."

"Doctor Ed says Max wants you to give up your training and marry him now."

"I'm not going to marry him at all, Chris."

Upstairs, K.'s door slammed. It was one of his fallings that he always slammed doors. Harriet used to be quite disagreeable about it.

Sidney slid from the railing.

"There he is now."

Perhaps, in all her frivolous, selfish life, Christine had never had a bigger moment than the one that followed. She would have said nothing, and, in the queer way that life goes, K. might have gone away from the Street as empty of heart as he had come to it.

"Be very good to him, Sidney," she said unsteadily. "He cares so much."

CHAPTER XXVII.

K. was being very dense. For so long had he considered Sidney as untouchable that now his masculine mind, a little weary with much wretchedness, refused to move from its old attitude.

"It was glamour, that was all, K.," said Sidney bravely.

"But, perhaps," said K., "it's just because of that miserable incident with Charlotte. That wasn't the right thing, of course, but Max has told me the story. It was really quite innocent. She fainted in the yard, and—"

Sidney was exasperated.

"Do you want me to marry him, K.?" K. looked straight ahead.

"I want you to be happy, dear."

They were on the terrace of the White Springs hotel again. K. had ordered dinner, making a great to-do about getting the dishes they both liked. But now that it was there, they were not eating. K. had turned his chair so that his profile was toward her. Past K.'s profile Sidney could see the magnolia tree shaped like a heart.

"It seems to me," said Sidney suddenly, "that you are kind to everyone but me, K."

He fairly stammered his astonishment.

"Why, what on earth have I done?"

"You are trying to make me marry Max, aren't you?"

She was very properly ashamed of that, and when he failed to reply out of sheer inability to think of one that would not say too much, she went hastily to something else: "It is hard for me to realize that you—that you lived a life of your own, a busy life, doing useful things, before you came to us. I wish you would tell me something about yourself. If we're to be friends when you go away," she had to stop there, for the lump in her throat—"I'll want to know how to think of you—who your friends are—all that."

He made an effort. He was thinking, of course, that he would be visualizing her, in the hospital, in the little house on its side street, as she looked just then, her eyes like stars, her lips just parted, her hands folded before her on the table.

"I shall be working," he said at last. "So will you."

"Does that mean you won't have time to think of me?"

"I believe I'm stupider than usual tonight. You can think of me as never forgetting you or the Street, working or playing."

Playing! Of course he would not work all the time. And he was going back to his old friends, to people who had always known him, to girls—

He did his best then. He told her of the old family house, built by one of his forebears who had been a king's man until Washington had put the case for the colonies, and who had given himself and his oldest son then to the cause that he made his own. He told of old servants who had wept when he decided to close the house and go away. When she fell silent, he thought he was interesting her.

But a terrible thing was happening to Sidney. Side by side with the wonders he described so casually, she was placing the little house. What an exile it must have been for him! When K., trying his best to interest her and to conceal his own heaviness of spirit, told her of his grandfather's old carriage, she sat back in the shadow.

"Fearful old thing," said K., "regular cabriolet. I can remember yet the family rows over it."

"When I was a child," said Sidney quietly, "and a carriage drove up and stopped on the Street, I always knew someone had died."

There was a strained note in her voice. K., whose ear was attuned to every note in her voice, looked at her quickly.

"My great-grandfather," said Sidney in the same tone, "sold chickens at market. He didn't do it himself; but the fact's there, isn't it?"

K. was puzzled.

"What about it?" he said.

"Go on," said Sidney dully. "Tell me about the women you have known, your friends, the ones you liked and the ones who liked you."

K. was rather apologetic.

"I've always been so busy," he confessed. "I know a lot, but I don't think they would interest you. They don't do anything, you know—they travel around and have a good time. They're rather nice to look at, some of them. But when you've said that you've said it all."

Nice to look at! Of course they would be, with nothing else to think of in all the world but of how they looked.

Suddenly Sidney felt very tired. She wanted to go back to the hospital, and turn the key in the door of her little room, and lie with her face down on the bed.

"Would you mind very much if I asked you to take me back?"

He did mind. He had a depressed feeling that the evening had failed. And his depression grew as he brought the car around. He understood, he thought. She was grieving about Max. After all, a girl couldn't care as she had for a year and a half, and then give a man up because of another woman, without a wrench.

"Do you really want to go home, Sidney, or were you tired of sitting there? In that case, we could drive around for an hour or two. I'll not talk if you'd like to be quiet."

Being with K. had become an agony, now that she realized how wrong Christine had been, and that their worlds, hers and K.'s, had only touched for a time. But she was not disposed to skip as to agony. She would go through with it, every word a stab, if only she might sit beside K. a little longer, might feel the touch of his old gray coat against her arm.

"I'd like to ride, if you don't mind."

K. turned the automobile toward the country roads.

"K."

"Yes?"

"Was there anybody you cared about—any girl—when you left home?"

"I was not in love with anyone, if that's what you mean."

"You knew Max before, didn't you?"

"Yes. You know that."

"If you knew things about him that I should have known, why didn't you tell me?"

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Dinner Stories

Aunt Beatrice was engaged. Beside her had been allowed to attend the betrothal party. That night she shortened her prayers by dropping the beloved aunt's name from her lengthy petition. Her mother was shocked.

"Why didn't you pray for Aunt Beatrice tonight?" she said.

"I didn't suppose she needed to be prayed for now she is engaged," said Bessie.

A shy young man had been calling for months on the sweetest girl in the world, but, being bashful, his suit languished. Finally she decided it was up to her to start something, so the next time he called she pointed to the carnation in his button-hole and said:

"I'll give you a kiss for that carnation."

The young man's color outdid the carnation in brilliancy, but the exchange was made. Then he grabbed his hat and started to leave the room.

"Why were you going?" she asked in surprise.

"To the florist's for more carnations," he called from the front door.

The doctor's wife had advertised for a girl to do housework and was showing an applicant over the house. She had been very liberal in her promises of privileges and it looked as though the two were going to come to an agreement, when the girl suddenly asked:

"Do you do your own stretching?"

"Do we do our own what?" asked the puzzled mistress.

"Stretchin'," repeated the girl. "Do you put all the food on the table and stretch for it, or do I have to shuffle it around?"

WILL ASK BOUNTY ON COYOTES IN ELEVEN WESTERN STATES

Salt Lake, Utah, Jan. 11.—Plans for the adoption of a uniform bounty law for coyotes seriously hampering sheep raising in the western range states will be made at the three-day convention of the National Woolgrowers' association which opened here today.

A special committee will report a measure which it framed for the legislatures of the eleven western states of Utah, Montana, Colorado, Wyoming, Arizona, New Mexico, Nevada, Oregon and Washington. A bounty of $2.50 a head will be proposed.

An estimated investment of $100,000,000 was represented by the 1,000 members from thirteen western states.

President Frank J. Hagenbath, in his annual report, predicted continued high prices for wool, declaring that adverse legislation, the reduction in ranges, the foreign outlook and bullish conditions generally have resulted in a large reduction in the size of flocks.

State Wide Publicity Is Assured Quickly and Economically Through

THE WISCONSIN DAILY LEAGUE

General advertisers have found it profitable to use the WISCONSIN DAILY LEAGUE papers for their publicity and have been placed instantly in touch with

800,000 OF THE BEST POPULATION IN THE STATE

Every worthwhile family living in the trading radius of each of the 26 cities of the League is a reader of the favorite home Daily League newspaper—they are the actual buyers of everything sold—your article as well. Every manufacturer, every person with anything to dispose of to the general public in Wisconsin, whose eye falls on this should ponder deeply. They should also think seriously of the fact that the hundreds of dealers in the localities covered by each of these papers are advertising patrons of these papers in order to reach all the worth while people, their customers and your customers.

The dealers are more interested in having publicity in their home daily newspaper about your article than in any other medium. Wise advertisers with their ear to the ground realize this fact and make their plans accordingly.

Your order, copy and payment are made and completed through the Secretary's Office, cutting down all trouble.

Clinton, Jan. 10.—The Puella club was very pleasantly entertained at the home of Miss Jessie Snyder, with Miss Margaret Younkerson hostess. The event of the evening was the announcement of the engagement of Miss Ruth Rau to Benjamin Chilson of Beloit.
The rooms were prettily decorated with red and white hearts and the evening was spent in playing bridge with hearts as trump. The place cards were two white hearts placed together with red arrows and by removing the arrow the guests found the names of the engaged couple neatly written inside. Each guest had brought a fa-

BOWLING ALLEYS TO OBEY SUNDAY LAWS

Oakdale, Wis., Jan. 11.—That the Oakdale Bowling association and bowling alley owners need have no fear of prosecution if they operate the alleys on Sunday, provided they sell no intoxicating liquor, is the opinion given them today by Attorney John F. Kluwin.

The request for an opinion came following the letter from the attorney general warning local saloon keepers not to sell liquor on and after next Sunday or be liable to prosecution under the Sunday closing statute. The letter threw the bowlers into consternation, as there are 500 or 600 of them here and at but two or three of the dozen bowling alleys in the city are operated in connection with saloons.

East Side Alleys

The Pirates had little trouble in winning from the Black Hawks last night at Miller's, beating them by a score of 217 to 211. This is the third game of the series which the Pirates have won.

Out-shaw at one time was one of the most reliable players on the footers. Last season he developed a tendency to hook and fumble easy grounders, and his wretched playing was responsible for the loss of one of the games to the Red Sox. Furthermore, his throwing arm, always weak, gave him considerable trouble and he had difficulty in throwing from second to home.

West Side Alleys

In one of the fastest matches of the season Richards' Goldfish won their contest from Baumann's Colts by the high score of 2703 to 2663. High scores were the rule; Higgins got a 254 score one game and Volcott a 235 in another. All three games were close.

INDIANA'S INDIANS SHOCKING TO ITALY

Rome, Jan. 11.—Buffalo Bill's Wild WEST has "advertised" America throughout Europe. His circus, playing frequently to European spectators, has left a trail of false impressions behind it. The American "movies" shown here only emphasize the same.

The case of Madame Montre interviewed today in a Roman boarding house is by no means uncommon. She is a well-known writer and literary woman.

"O, you are an American," she began. "I am so glad to meet you. For I am making a scientific study of America."

"I was recently presented to some people from a state called called Indiana. Really they didn't look so much like Indians. Of course, their manners were a little off. It must be very difficult for one to live in the states. The constant clash of the American and the Indian civilizations is undoubtedly a nerve-racking annoyance."

"Of course, the poor Indians really did give a civilization to the world. They were a simple and natural people, having real art and a real literature."

"The Indian at least has blood and not machine oil in his veins. Naturally, there are some savages, the good being always mixed with the bad."

"The Americans are frequently called 'the Germans of the New World.' New York City is regarded as the beginning and end of the United States. It is allegedly a riot of skyscraping buildings, loving women, spoiled wives and fresh children."

SECOND WISCONSIN CONGRESS CLAIMS MERCHANTS' INTEREST

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Wis., Jan. 11.—Many features of interest to retailers will be included in the program of the Second Wisconsin Commercial and Industrial Congress to be held under the auspices of the University of Wisconsin on Feb. 20-22, according to recent announcements.

E. St. Elmo Lewis, national authority on salesmanship and advertising, will give two addresses. He is a practical man who is engaged daily in the promotion of more remunerative business.

James W. Fisk, who has charge of the retail accounting work of the Associated Ad Clubs of the World, will appear on the program several times. He was formerly educational director for Ford and Tyler of New York and for J. L. Hudson company of Detroit.

A. C. McMahon, western manager of the National Cash Register company, who made one of the big hits at the World's Salesmanship Congress at Detroit, will speak on "Solving the Knotty Problems of the Salesman."

G. M. Pinger, of Fond du Lac, will explain how he reduces the cost of doing business through the use of "The Cash and Carry Plan."

M. Slatery, secretary of the Retail Grocers' and Merchants' association of Wisconsin, will talk on "Cost Accounting for the Retail Merchant" from the standpoint of the general merchant.

C. P. Jackson, of De Pere, will tell how merchants of the state are materially reducing delivery costs. Cost accounting as applied to retail trade will be presented by Prof. F. W.

Elwell, H. W. Meyer, and L. R. Boulware.

Two methods of getting a more rapid turnover will be taken up by Prof. E. H. Gardner and G. P. Irwin. The first will discuss "Increasing Volume and Decreasing Cost through Effective Advertising." The second will talk on "Reducing Cost by Increasing Sales."

Mornings and evenings will be devoted to general sessions on important subjects. Afternoons will be devoted to sectional meetings and round tables for merchants, manufacturers, bankers, and commercial secretaries.

Troubles of the retail merchant and their remedies will be depicted through moving pictures and a lecture during noon hours.

BOY, 20, LEARNED TO FLY IN DAYTON—BAGS THREE GERMAN AT FRONT

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Ottawa, Jan. 11.—Just a year ago, Murray Galbraith, 20, an Ottawa Valley boy studying at St. Andrews college, packed his guns for Dayton, Ohio, to learn to fly. He made the course in record time and left for overseas to commission in the British Naval Air Service.

Today Galbraith has three German fiers to his credit, and is the owner of a French Croix de Guerre, pinned to his breast by the President after he had sent a fast "Fokker" sailing to the ground, 40 miles inside the Teuton lines. He also has received special mention for conspicuous gallantry in Imperial dispatches.

In a chummy letter he tells of his first exploit. He wrote:

"Yesterday two Germans were reported not far from here and I was sent up after them. In an hour and a half I was flying at 12,500 feet and saw a German machine 500 feet below. I turned and ran away so he would chase me. He was faster than I, and soon was under my tail, about 500 feet below me."

"Then I looped around behind him, emptied 36 shots into his machine before he noticed me. He did a vertical nose dive for a thousand feet and then caught fire and fell into the sea 10,000 feet below."

"So I have had my first fight in the air and got my man! Gosh! I was excited, Mother, and when I was coming back to the 'drome' I did all kinds of stunts and all my spare ammunition fell out when I was upside down." He has been in active service exactly six months.
